

James Barr Intervention

Summary

In both Sykes's and George-Picot's eyes, the failure to resolve the question of Palestine was the immediate, obvious failing of their 1916 agreement. James will argue that this failing give new life to the Zionist movement, as the British sought to rewrite the deal by forming a new alliance with the Zionists, which culminated in the Balfour Declaration in November 1917.